

Welcome Gunslingers to the Showdown.

This is a three-round shootout, with the player with the most points at the end being the winner.

Each round you can score 1 point for hitting your opponent and score 1 bonus point if you had drawn second. Fail to draw or hit your opponent, you don't score points for the round.

HOW TO PLAY

Each player chooses a character (either Cowboy or Desperado) and takes the appropriate deck of cards. A round is split into four phases.

1) LOAD BULLETS

Each player selects 6 of their cards (we also call them bullets, but only when it sounds cooler than card) and places them face down in front of themselves, in any order as long as both players can reach them.

Once a player is happy with the bullets they have placed, they declare to their opponent that they are ready.

2) STARE DOWN

When both players are ready, they take turns to reveal one of their face down bullets. They do this by choosing a single bullet by touching it and then turning it face up.

Which player goes first? "Whoever goes first, goes first".

I.e. The player who chooses one of their bullets first.

Once a player touches one of their bullets to choose it, they cannot change their mind. As soon as it is turned over and revealed, their turn ends and it becomes their opponents turn.

A player cannot touch any of their bullets until it is their turn.

3) DRAW

When a player reveals a red Draw card, this signals their intent to shoot at their opponent and this will be the last bullet that they choose and reveal this round. What happens next is like a game of Snap (or rather BANG!).

The player who revealed the Draw card (now known as the attacker) gets to try and touch any of their opponent's (now known as the defender) remaining face down bullets before the defender can choose their next bullet (by touching it). If the attacker is able to touch one of the defender's bullets first, the attacker takes an "Instant shot".

However, if the defender is fast enough to choose their next bullet before the attacker touches one of their face down cards, then the defender gets to reveal this bullet. If this card is a Draw card, then both players take "Simultaneous shots". If it is any other card, the attacker takes an "Instant shot".

If it is unclear which player was fastest to the defender's cards, then the defender is considered to have been fast enough.

If a player makes a move towards their opponent's cards without revealing a draw card, they are considered to have signalled their intention to shoot, and so their last card will be the last card they revealed for the round.

4) SHOOT

Players resolve whether any shots taken hit their opponent in this phase (this is why we called it the shoot phase) and start by working out the total value of the Speed and Accuracy modifiers on revealed bullets that affect them. As soon as a player is hit by a shot, the round ends immediately. If both players take a shot and both miss, the round also ends.

INSTANT SHOT

The attacker rolls the dice and add this value to the Accuracy modifiers that affect them. If this total value is 6 or higher, or they rolled a hit (, then their shot has hit their opponent and the round ends. If the modified value is less than 6, then their shot misses.

If the attacker misses their opponent, the defender can still reveal cards and may shoot back at the attacker. A defender may reveal up to a maximum of two cards after the attacker has revealed their Draw card.

SIMULTANEOUS SHOTS

Both players compare their total speed value, with the attacker getting an additional +1 speed modifier. The player with the highest speed result resolves their shot first as if it was an Instant shot. If they miss their opponent, then their opponent gets to resolve their shot as if it was an Instant shot.

If both players have the same speed result, then they shoot at each other at exactly the same time, resolving whether the shots hit following the procedure described in an Instant shot. It is possible for both players to be hit this way.

END OF ROUND

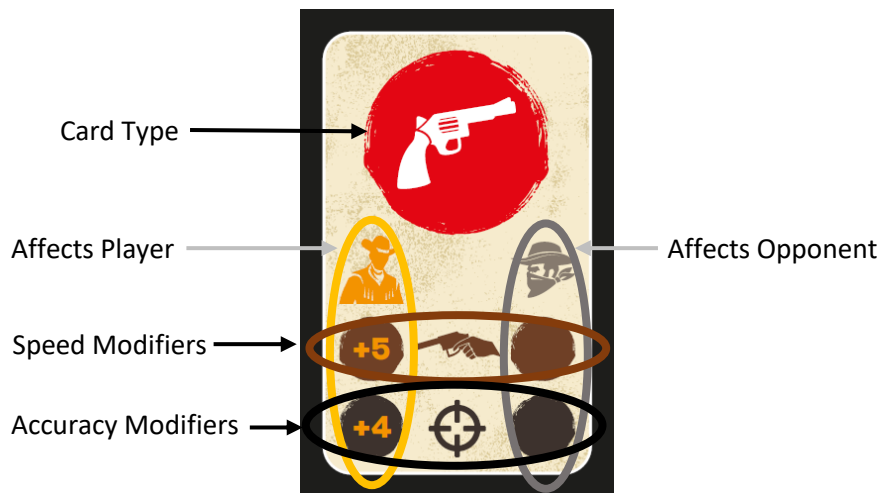

A player who hit their opponent with a shot scores one point. If a player revealed their Draw card second and hit their opponent, then they get a second point as a bonus for drawing second.

When using Six-Gun Showdown Single Shot decks, revealed bullets are returned to their deck ready to be selected in the next round.

END OF GAME

The game ends after three rounds, and the player with the highest score wins. If the score is tied, then play an additional round, or rounds, until one player has the highest score.

CARD DESCRIPTIONS

Modifiers on cards/bullets are relative to the Player who revealed the card/bullet.

DRAW: Indicates a Player's intention to shoot and triggers the Draw Phase

FOCUS: Improves a Player's Accuracy

REACH: Improves a Player's Speed

DISTRACT: Reduces an Opponent's Speed and/or Accuracy, and might affect the Player's Speed or Accuracy

FLINCH: Major boost to a Player's Speed and Accuracy, but is not included if Opponent's next card/bullet is not a Draw card

RE-ROLL: Player who revealed this bullet can choose to re-roll (once) the affected players dice.

COMBINING WITH THE FINAL GAME

You can use a "Single Shot" character in a game against a character from the full game. At the end of each round, the "Single Shot" character must discard at least half of their revealed cards, but stop when their deck is reduced to only four cards.

If both players agree, this rule can also be incorporated into a game of Six Gun Showdown:Single shot.
